COMMITTEE SEEKS BIDS FOR MATERIAL IN OLD CITY HALL

Sealed bids for material in the old Atlanta city hall, at Forsyth and Marietta streets, will be received by the buildings and grounds committee of council, of which Councilman George Lyle is chairman, until noon, February 1, it was announced Friday. The building is to be wrecked to make way for the $2,500,000 commercial and office development to be erected by Carling Dinkler, and the borough of Atlanta is attempting to dispose of the building for its wreckage plus a tidy sum for salvaging of material it contains.

Ardent Suitor Breaks Guitar On Lover's Head

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 9.—(P)—Because Maria Reyes did not come out on the balcony to toss him the traditional flower when he serenaded her at 5 o'clock in the morning, Juan Martinez climbed through a window and broke his guitar over her head. Juan was merely following Mexican custom when he appeared to awaken Maria early on her saint's day to the St. Cains of Las Mananitas, and when she refused to get up after a half hour's singing and strumming, he became incensed. KENTUCKY SOLONS PLAN TO REDUCE GOVERNOR'S POWER

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 10.—(P) Members of the Kentucky legislature, both branches of which are in the control of the democrats, are preparing measures to strip from Governor Flem D. Sampson, lone republican administrative officer, some of his powers, it became known today. One measure now being prepared for submission when the legislature reconvenes Monday after a week's recess, is a resolution providing for an investigation into the recent sale by the highway commission of approximately $11,000,000 in bridge bonds and a general investigation into affairs of the highway department. A bill being drafted, according to reports, provides for removing from the governor the power of appointing members of the commission.

COOLIDGE FINDS SPONGE FISHING 'MOST INTERESTING'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 10. (P)—Former President Calvin Coolidge went sponge fishing in the Gulf of Mexico today in a two-masted smack, manned by a crew of swarthy Greeks, and afterward said it was one of the most interesting trips of his life.

Leaving here shortly after noon with a motorcycle escort, twenty automobiles, filled with Mr. Coolidge's associates here for the annual convention of the New York Life Insurance Company, travelled northward along the Gulf coast to the quaint little city of Tarpon Springs, center of one of the largest sponge fishing industries in the world. Arriving at the docks on the Anclote river, Mr. Coolidge and his wife were greeted by hundreds of Greek fishermen and other residents of the city, who turned out en masse to catch a glimpse of the former president. The entire fishing fleet of approximately 100 boats was in port for the annual Greek Epiphany celebration and each ship was gaily decorated with both the American and Greek flags flying from the topmast.

The visitors were welcomed at the train by civic officials from Miami, Miami Beach and Coral Gables, and by business men of Miami area. After the greeting at the railroad station, the party was taken in a motor parade to the hotel, in Coral Gables, where another welcome was tendered by officials.

Trust officers of all three Atlanta banks which are members of the clearing house, have signified their support of the movement and they will place advertising matter before the public in its behalf.

Atlantans are being urged by the underwriters and bankers to consider carefully the immense value of insurance to the insured and his family and to give the matter special thought on "Insurance Day."

CHILDREN DIVIDED BY COURT'S RULING IN DIVORCE SUIT

A tip from King Solomon's ruling when he was faced by two persons claiming the same child, was taken Friday by Judge Edgar Pomeroy in Fulton superior court.

Judge Pomeroy was called upon to award custody of a four-year-old boy and a two-year-old girl in a divorce suit brought by Mrs. Eula Mae Donaldson against William S. Donaldson.

The court gave June, the daughter, to the mother, and Billy, the son, to the father, and added the provision that at certain hours the mother have access to the boy, and the father to the girl. Judge Pomeroy also awarded Mrs. Donaldson $25 a month for support of the girl.

COMMITTEE APPROVES NEW FIRE ORDINANCES

Action Delayed on Extending Protection to Territory
Outside Atlanta Borough.

New fire ordinances for the borough of Atlanta were recommended Friday afternoon as was the proposed budget for 1930, which will go to the finance committee of council. The session of the fire board was held at fire headquarters with Councilman William E. Saunders, chairman, presiding.

No action was taken on extension of fire protection to Fulton county lying outside the limits of the borough of Atlanta pending a decision of Fulton county officials. The next meeting of the board is slated for Wednesday, January 29, at which time commissioners will be present to bid for continued fire service for outlying districts.

Revision of the fire ordinances will do much to reduce the fire hazard and will affect what are commonly known as hazardous risks.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Asks Change in Leadership Of Federal Reserve Board

Committee Reports Recommends Transferring Chairmanship From Secretary of Treasury to Governor of Board.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Removal of the secretary of the treasury from the chairmanship of the federal reserve board in favor of the governor of the board was advocated today in a committee report accompanying a referendum submitted to its membership by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The questions upon which 1,700 business organizations were asked to vote also included recommendations that the flow of bank credit into speculative channels be restricted, but without prescription by congress of precise methods to be followed, and that a uniform rate of discount for all reserve banks be "unsuited to our regional system and to the diversity of business conditions."

Nineteen questions were presented in the referendum, which was completed by 50 leaders in business, labor and agriculture after a year's study, which the chamber said was "probably the most extensive examination of the country's central banking system ever undertaken." The report said that the results, which are to be made public on February 24, would, in effect, "determine the policies of organized business towards the reserve system."

Few Changes. Relatively few of the recommendations favor changes in the federal reserve act itself, and in no instance was there insistence upon immediate legislation.

"Instead, there is emphasis," the report said, "upon the importance of a capable and politically independent management and upon the wisdom of permitting the system to develop improvements in practice."

Urging removal of the treasury head from the dominant place on the board, the committee said the position of governor should be enhanced, and added that "the board cannot possibly be expected to meet the anticipation of the farmers of the reserve act while it continues to include the secretary of the treasury as its chairman, overshadowing the governor."

"Indeed," the report continued, "we are convinced of the inadvisability of including the secretary of the treasury as a member of the board.

"It is hardly going too far to say that since the establishment of the reserve system, the treasury department to a considerable extent has overshadowed the board and has tended, consciously or unconsciously, to reduce the board to the status of a departmental bureau."

Salary Increase. The committee proposed that the salaries of board members be increased from $12,000 to a minimum of $30,000 annually for the governor and $25,000 for other members, holding that the salaries must approach, at least, the salaries paid in the field of general banking, from which federal reserve management must be drawn.

Recommendations also were made that the feasibility of divorcing the office of the comptroller of the currency from the treasury department and bringing it under the purview of the federal reserve board be considered.

Entering into the widespread discussion of broad loans, which the reserve board moved to curb last year when they were at their peak, the committee urged that in determining the system's credit policy, federal reserve authorities, with co-operation of the member banks, should endeavor to restrict the flow of bank credit into speculative channels, but without prescription by congress of precise methods to be followed.

Speculation. "Widespread speculation in any of the markets—real estate, commodity or stock—may make such demands upon the credit resources of the country as to impair their liquidity or dislocate the supply available for undertakings involving a normal business risk or unduly increase its cost," the committee said in support of its recommendation. "Speculation in a local or general market may arise from causes other than the immediate or prospective volume of money or credit."

When widespread speculation is attributable in an important part, however, to an over-abundant supply of money or credit, it is clearly of concern to the system, since it possesses some power to influence the quantity and cost of that supply. On such occasions the system should avoid seeking or urging such adjustments in the credit supply or in the directions of the use of credit as will assist in restoring the proper balance between the volume of credit used for speculative purposes and that used in accommodation to business and industry.

HALF OF STATES HELP DRY ACT ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Approximately half the states are giving fairly satisfactory co-operation in dry law enforcement, Assistant Secretary Lowman said today, adding that in the other half it was spasmodic and not all the government would like to have.

The treasury, through the prohibition bureau, started a movement last summer to obtain better co-operation from the states. Conferences were held with governors and prosecutors and they were asked to shoulder more of the prohibition burden by trying minor violations under the state nuisance statutes. As a result of these conferences, police said, some aid was being received in each state, though in about half it was spasmodic and not as much as the government would like to have.

OIL COMPANY BIRTHDAY OBSERVED BY LEADERS

Rockefeller 'Movie' Greets Guests at Standard Oil Banquet.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 10.—(AP)—More than 200 outstanding leaders in the industries of the United States celebrated here tonight the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the Standard Oil Company by John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and his former associates. Mr. Rockefeller, spending the winter at Ormond Beach, Fla., was unable to be present, but a talking picture of him conveyed a personal greeting to those assembled.

It was the founding of the Standard Oil Company 60 years ago that was the beginning of the high attainments of the present oil industry, and the stroke that made Rockefeller at one time the richest man in the country. From that fortune he is known to have given more than $750,000,000 to science and charity to further world's fight for a better and healthier race.

Joining in the tribute to Rockefeller, "the oil king," tonight were representatives from all of the Standard Oil Companies which have grown out of the original firm, and from many of their large competitors. The celebration was arranged by W. T. Holliday, president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

Although now past 90 years of age, Mr. Rockefeller, as shown in the special talking picture, appeared to be in excellent health. He was shown walking in the tribute to Rockefeller at home, and then reading a letter addressed to Mr. Holliday, conveying his greetings to tonight's gathering.

In concluding the great figure of the oil world smiled happily and waved cheerfully toward the camera.

Rockefeller's beginnings in the infant oil industry were commonly discussed at the meeting. He was among the first to realize the potentialities of oil after the first oil well was drilled in 1859 near Titusville, Pa., making $17,000 profits out of a commission business in Cleveland. Rockefeller invested it with an equal amount from his partner, Maurice B. Clark, in a "kerosene" refinery here in 1862. Three years later, when he was 26 years old, he bought out Clark for $72,500. Ten years before he had been an office boy at $15 a month.

Samuel Andrews and Henry M. Flagler later became interested with Rockefeller. Flagler gave him a contract with Stephen V. Harkness, then Cleveland's richest man. Harkness provided unlimited credit and a partnership of "Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler" was formed, and bought out many competitors.

The next step in Rockefeller's industrial structure was the founding of the Standard Oil Company. The incorporation papers were signed January 10, 1870. Dealing to look into speculative transactions on the New York exchange, he thoroughly into the account books of the last two years.

ANNISTON, Ala., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Perjury charges against Miss Eula Rainey, 18, and Mrs. Maggie Webb, 16, in connection with their testimony in obtaining a marriage license for Fred Champion, 23, and Lillie Mae Forsyth, 12-year-old grammar school girl, were dismissed today following a preliminary hearing. Champion was bound over to the next Calhoun county grand jury. Bond was set at $750.

Poor Farm Inmate Makes Huge Bid For Real Estate

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Mitchell McLarin, an inmate of the poor farm here, has made a bid of $110,000 for Monroe county ferry property for which sale bids were asked January 6.

At the institution McLarin admitted making the bid and said one of the county commissioners knew he was an inmate of the poor farm when he filed the offer. He said he had been in the paying business and if his bid is accepted, he can get proper bond signed in Detroit.

McLarin's bid specified that he would pay $10,000 a year with 6 per cent interest but did not say the sum had to come out of the net earnings of the ferry property.

McLarin said he asked County Clerk Ross Sawyer for a proposal form four days before bids were opened and was told there were none. When bids were opened, he said he was introduced by Carl Hervall, chairman of the board of commissioners.

An inmate of the poor farm for five weeks, McLarin said he was placed in the institution by Carl Hervall, a member of the board of county commissioners, due to illness when he pleaded lack of funds. He has been in Key West about two months, coming here from Detroit, he said. McLarin, who is 58 years of age, has conducted himself properly and always appeared neatly dressed. He said he had no money, they added.

PROBE INTO COTTON EXCHANGES REOPENS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Investigation of cotton exchanges by a senate agriculture subcommittee will get under way again tomorrow with testimony from a Virginia dealer and an Oklahoma Cotton Association representative.

Meeting today for the first time since the Christmas recess, the subcommittee decided to call T. Ralph Jones, of Norfolk, and S. L. Morley, of Oklahoma City, manager of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' Association.

The subcommittee wants to question Morley about testimony by C. L. Stealey, also of Oklahoma City, and former manager of the association, that Carl Williams, cotton's representative on the farm board, had induced the association to "gamble" on the New York exchange.

Deciding to look thoroughly into speculative transactions on the New York exchange the subcommittee also ordered R. St. George Walker, secretary and treasurer of that exchange's clearing house, to appear on Monday with the account books of the last two years.

Mr. Washburn added that no subpoenas had been served, but that several officers under the Whelan management would appear for examination next Tuesday at the state bureau of securities.

FT. MYERS, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Thomas A. Edison is "too busy to ride in an airplane."

An airplane company sent the aged inventor an invitation to take a special ride over his winter home but the invitation went back with Mr. Edison's pencilled "no." He said he was too busy with his rubber experiments.

FLORIDA TREASURY HOLDING GAS TAXES DURING LITIGATION

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 10.—Florida's treasury held more than two and a quarter million dollars in state gas tax collections made during the last of 1929, and held up by litigation over the state gas tax act of the last legislature, according to the monthly report of Treasurer W. V. Knott, announced today.

The report showed that at the end of the year there was $2,487,784.21 on deposit with the treasury to the credit of the various funds, most of which had been transferred to depositories over the state. This was about a million and a half dollars more than the balance at the end of last November.

Land Owners Contest Appraisers' Value Of National Park Site

BROWNSVILLE, Ky., Jan. 10.—(AP)—First blood in a long legal battle seeking to condemn 70,818 acres of land containing Mammoth cave for a national park was drawn here by the Kentucky national park commission when a decision was handed down in Edmondson county court approving a valuation fixed by appraisers of $406,000 for the land.

Eighteen joint owners of the land contested the condemnation proceedings and the decision probably will be appealed to Edmondson circuit court, the usual proceeding in condemnation cases.

Hunter Captures Hawk After Hard Fight And Presents It to Zoo at Grant Park

Roy P. Fowler, donor of the prize hawk, holding his capture so that its wing spread of four feet and one inch may be plainly seen. The bird was presented to the Grant Park zoo Friday afternoon and is the largest of the five hawks there.

The hawk colony at the Grant Park zoo has been increased to a total of five, for on Friday afternoon a huge red tail hawk, the largest now in the possession of the city, was turned into the cage there by an Atlanta hunter. The hawk, a gift by Roy P. Fowler, was captured after an hour's struggle in a field above Cassville Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Fowler, employed in the composing room of The Constitution, accompanied by a party of friends, went there to hunt quail on the property of Jim Brownlee. In the party in addition to himself and Mr. Brownlee were R. L. Wright and H. E. Miller, of Atlanta.

They had just flushed a covey of quail when the hawk flew low over them, ostensibly to catch quail for his own supper. Fowler fired at the bird and one small slug struck it in his eagle-like beak. The bird fell stunned and the hunters attempted to capture it. Though knocked senseless by the blow it fought instinctively, and it was almost an hour before it was subdued and brought to Atlanta Wednesday night.

The bird was kept at the Fowler home, 328 Mell avenue, in a crude home-made cage until Thursday when it was brought to The Constitution office and photographed.

The bird, the largest to be placed in the zoo here, measures four feet and one inch from wing tip to wing tip. When carried to Grant park by T. W. Fowler, a brother of the hunter, Friday afternoon, the hawk immediately declared war on the other four hawks and at the last report was reigning supreme and little the worse for the slight gunshot wound.

De Rivera Gives Interview And Does Best to Say Nothing

BY JOHN GUNTHER.

(Copyright, 1929, for The Constitution, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.) MADRID, Spain, Jan. 10.—Don Miguel Primo de Rivera y Orbaneja, marquis of Estella, foreign minister, prime minister and dictator of Spain, gave me an "exclusive interview" today—in which he did his best not to say a thing.

Busy over papers, harried by secretaries, nervous as a result of the recent crisis and doubtless hungry—it was almost 9 in the evening and he had not yet dined—Primo took me in his room with one hand and saw me out with the other five minutes later, but in the interim was friendly, bright—and, alas, confidential.

He resolutely and absolutely refused to discuss politics.

He was interested, however, in the forthcoming Chicago century of progress fair, and he replied to a question whether Spain would be represented by saying humorously that it depended on what kind of a fair it was, and anyway that Spain had not been invited yet.

"But at your last world's fair Spain was importantly represented, first by a visit in person of the Infanta Eulalia, aunt of King Alfonso, and second by a shipment of replicas of Columbus' caravels," Primo said. Then he added the hope that this time too Spain would be importantly represented.

"We had at the Philadelphia (sesqui-centennial) fair, but I understand that that fair was not so successful," Primo laughed.

Primo is a big, loose-fellow, who crouches over his small desk, dwarfing it. He smiles brilliantly, showing a large gold tooth, and chuckles as he talks. He wears a dark gray suit, not a uniform.

"What do you think has been the most important achievement of the dictatorship during the past six years?" I tried to ask him.

"They are so numerous I could not begin to tell you," Primo said. He then insisted that he could not answer political questions except in writing and after long preparation.

He diverted the talk to questioning me as to how long I had been in Spain, how I found it, whether or not I had yet been to the great Spanish fairs in Barcelona and Seville. I said that I was going next week.

"Well, when you come back I shall take a hand at interviewing you," Primo said.

Meantime the atmosphere of his office was one denoting extreme hurry. Primo has three gestures—a wide smile for which he lifts his whole jaw, an intense, nervous fiddling of various papers and a deliberate drawing of his hand down the length of his nose.

I mentioned the interest and uncertainty in the United States over the future of his dictatorship, but he refused to say anything except to insist that my questions be written.

"I am always delighted to see Americans and say good evening to them," Primo concluded, giving me a large slap on the back and a final friendly wink. "But at this time I cannot be interviewed."

When my request for an interview was granted there had been no mention that questions should be written. Therefore, at the risk of being somewhat tactless, especially Primo's secretary, who had been interpreting, said that he was awfully sorry but he had to meet someone at the train.

Again I attempted a serious political question, but again Primo cut me off. And by this time the door was open, showing hurried groups of officials and secretaries and hangers-on.

Primo said good-bye. Thus, so far as this correspondent is concerned, two of the most interesting questions in Spain remain a mystery—one, is Primo really going to retire in July; two, what exactly are the relations between Primo and the king? On answers to these hinge the future of Spain, and it may be that no one knows the answers—including Primo.

Examine Plane Wreckage to Find Cause of Crash

WOODBINE, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—The cause of the crash in which Mrs. Neva Finley Paris, 36-year-old prize winner in the last woman's national air derby lost her life, was sought today in the wreckage of her plane.

The body of Mrs. Paris was taken from Brunswick, Ga., last night to her home in New York, and a representative of the Curtiss Flying Service, which had employed her, was ordered to come here from Columbia, S. C., and examine the debris of the airship.

En route to a Miami, Fla., flying meet Mrs. Paris' plane circled over Woodbine several times yesterday at an altitude of about 2,000 feet and then fell. The craft was demolished, but did not catch fire.

Taking up aviation in 1928, Mrs. Paris was an apt pupil and early in 1929 made an emergency landing on a patch of mud at the old Curtiss field near Mineola after her propeller had dropped off when she was 300 feet in the air. She won fifth place in the national women's air derby last year and had planned to interest wealthy friends in buying planes while in Florida.

The New York Evening World said yesterday that she was divorced from her first husband, Dr. E. J. Paris, in 1918. Paris attracted attention in 1913 by refusing to become a patient of Dr. Friedrich Friedmann, to whom his father offered $1,000,000 if the doctor would cure the young man of tuberculosis. Paris later regained his health by living out doors and the German specialist was exposed by physicians as a fake.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Finley, her parents, a sister and a brother survive Mrs. Paris.

TWO ARRESTS MADE UNDER NARCOTIC ACT

Estelle Gann Is Said To Be
Operator of Large Dope Ring.

Estelle Gann, said to be the head of one of the largest dope rings in this section, and Willie Burke, whose trial on a dope indictment has been set for January 22, were arrested here Friday afternoon on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

Mrs. Gann was released on a $10,000 bond following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith. Bond for Burke was set at $7,000, which he had not made at a later hour Friday.

Federal agents accompanied by City Officers Ford and McGee, made the arrests at a Williams street address and in so doing expressed the belief that they had uncovered one of the largest sources of morphine in the city.

They gained entrance to the locked house by stopping Burke just as he drove up in an automobile. McGee testified, following which they took his keys, opened the door and walked in. Mrs. Gann was found with half an ounce of morphine in a container on a chair at her side, they stated.

"Well, you've got me," she is reported to have said.

She denied that she had been guilty of selling dope, but admitted that she had been an addict for 20 years. Burke admitted living at the raided house, but said he knew nothing of the morphine.

"I have raided this woman's house 40 times in the last five years," McGee told the court. "She runs one of the worst dives in town and her husband is now serving time on a dope charge."

Court records reveal that Mrs. Gann has served a year and a day on a previous narcotic charge, having entered a plea of guilty before Judge Samuel H. Sibley in October, 1925. Another case is now pending against her on a similar charge. Burke is under an indictment returned a few months ago charging violation of the Harrison narcotic act, court records show, and his case has been put on the calendar for January 22.

Both Mrs. Gann and Burke figured in a shooting scrape October 30 on West Peachtree place, according to police records, when Mrs. Gann was shot through the eye. She claimed that it happened accidentally when she went to awaken Burke who had a gun in his possession.

DOG SLAYER CLEARED OF TORTURE CHARGE

J. H. Williams Declares Injury of Animal Was Result of Accident.

J. H. Williams, of 60 Fairhaven circle, Friday morning was exonerated of a charge of cruelty to animals following a hearing before Justice of the Peace Dwight Minihurn, at Buckhead. Williams admitted killing "Tut," an English bulldog, which was the property of A. P. Brown, of 48 Fairhaven circle, but denied that torture was involved in the dog's death.

Williams told the court that the dog was struck by a rock he threw in an effort to scare away several dogs engaged in a fight in the driveway of Williams' home. He had not intended to hit the dog, he said, but apparently the animal, was in a dying condition. Upon the advice of a friend, Williams hit the dog in the head with an ax to end its suffering, and, with the friend, carried the animal in a sack to the place where it was found later by a negro chauffeur, he said.

Williams, who is a disabled war veteran, said that because of his nervous condition, the fighting of the dogs in his driveway worried him.

Howard Moss, a friend of Williams, corroborated the statement of Williams that the killing of the dog was accidental. Williams was represented by Chauncey Middlebrooks. Attorney J. W. Weaver represented A. P. Brown, owner of the dog.

H. A. Manning Named Head Of Atlanta Traffic Club

James A. Perry Urges Co-operation and Understanding in Shipper and Carrier Problems.

H. A. Manning, traffic manager of the Atlanta Paper Company, was elected president of the local traffic club at the annual meeting and dinner-dance Friday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Other officers named were Neil G. Skilling, first vice president, and C. L. Cunningham, second vice president. F. B. Porter was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Following invocation by the Rev. Luther Rice Christie, pastor of Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, F. C. Cheney, retiring president, introduced the toastmaster, Past President J. Wesley White. "The meeting tonight signifies the completion of one of the most successful years in the club's history of existence," said Mr. White, "and it is the first time we have had the ladies with us—we are glad to have them."

Perry Urges Co-operation. The principal speaker, James A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia public service commission, prefaced an address on "Shipper and Carrier Co-operation in Transportation," with humorous references to his first contact with a common carrier. Declaring that there was "good" in both shipper and carrier, Mr. Perry pointed out that an understanding of the problems of the two by each other and a disposition on the part of each to candidly discuss their problems would result in benefit to both and a necessary betterment of their relations with the public.

"The old feud in Georgia between the public and common carriers caused one of the worst situations in the history of the state, and I am glad that I have lived to see the public view the railroad and the railroad view the public with tolerance and respect for their respective rights and views," said Mr. Perry. "It is a grave mistake for any person to assume that he cannot be doing anything, and I am convinced that if common sense and understanding between both parties to litigation involving railroads had been exercised instead of distrust and selfishness, 90 per cent of the cases which went into courts for trial would never have reached them."

"The Georgia public service commission and the interstate commerce commission are both loaded down with a mass of matters involving all phases of the carrier and shipping question and there is no way of knowing when all these problems can be disposed of," Mr. Perry said. "This situation will be remedied, and our disposal of future cases expedited, when all parties interested seek fairly to solve their problems, and our trouble would be greatly minimized if the public would come to us with their views and complaints instead of merely discussing them among themselves and dropping them."

Declaring that after a long and bitter experience people have learned to view common carriers and public utilities in the proper light, Mr. Perry said that capital goes where it is courteously treated and where the return on the investment is fair. The public is entitled to the best services possible at the very lowest rate, whether it be freight, express or passenger service, and the keynote to a continuation of the better relations existing between corporations and the public, and assurance that it will improve lies, said Mr. Perry, in co-operation and understanding.

Guests of the club introduced by Mr. White were, Horace Russell, newly elected president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; James B. Nevin, of the Atlanta Georgia; E. S. Neilson, freight traffic manager of the Pennsylvania Railway; Colonel

"THE RIGHT WAY"

CO-OPERATIVE TO BEGIN OPERATION BY MONDAY

Will Be Incorporated in Delaware Today and Start Buying.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Ready to operate on Monday, the new $30,000,000 national cotton co-operative prepared tonight to file articles of incorporation in Delaware tomorrow. It will probably be called the "Cotton Corporation of America" and have headquarters in the export market in New York. The location is expected to be announced tomorrow.

Announcement of the progress was made by C. L. Barker, representing cotton on the federal farm board. He said he expected the organization to incorporate tomorrow, elect officers, take stock subscriptions from member co-operatives and be ready to buy and sell cotton Monday.

He predicted it would act immediately to market what it could get of the remainder of the present crop. "Under the laws of Delaware," Williams said, "a corporation can start business with $1,000 capital. Stock subscriptions ready to be delivered to the cotton corporation far exceeded that figure, and if it wishes peace and quiet, it will have no trouble in getting the necessary funds."

Williams stressed the fact that once the corporation is formed, its business secrets will be kept from the public. "We are going into this," he said, "to save the cotton farmer from the cotton trust."

"We are going into this," he said, "to save the cotton farmer from the cotton trust. We are going into this to save the cotton farmer from the cotton trust. We are going into this to save the cotton farmer from the cotton trust."

Williams said that once the corporation is formed, its business secrets will be kept from the public. "We are going into this," he said, "to save the cotton farmer from the cotton trust."

developing 2,000,000 horsepower, he reminded the committee that the expansion of the textile industry will naturally seek such facilities.

The Georgia cotton bankers in providing financial facilities for operations of the $30,000,000 corporation was promised by Mr. McCadden. Previously H. Lane Young had informed the body that the financial resources of Georgia banking institutions were adequate to meet all requirements of the comprehensive marketing agency.

In summing up the case for Atlanta, Mr. Barker called attention to the city's network of air mail routes. These he said would be found to be highly important in mail communication and in sending cotton samples from cotton concentration points to the market centers. The extensiveness of telephone and telegraph equipment in the city was also stressed by the "Cotton Corporation of America."

J. E. Conwell, head of the Georgia Cotton Co-operatives and himself a member of the organization, said that the cotton trust had been a long time in the making and that the cotton trust had been a long time in the making and that the cotton trust had been a long time in the making.

Mr. Maddox and other members of the Atlanta delegation left Washington late this afternoon after completion of the hearings, convinced that the city had a splendid chance to lead in the cotton trust.

WRIGHT SAYS SHOALS WASTE IS SCANDALOUS

Georgia Representative Says Only 5.3 Per Cent of Power Sold.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Charges that power waste at Muscle Shoals constitutes a "national scandal," made in the house today by Representative Wright, democrat, Georgia, awakened again one of the long controverted issues in congress.

Wright asserted that only 5.3 per cent of the available power developed at Muscle Shoals was sold during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, and that it was sold at the "very low" figure of two mills per kilowatt hour.

Assailing what he termed was an "unjustified and shocking waste" amounting to a "national scandal," during debate on the annual war department supply bill which appropriates funds for the maintenance and operation of the plant, Wright said the power produced was being sold to one company, "The Alabama Power Company, for the simple reason that it is the only power company which has a power line to Muscle Shoals and has a virtual monopoly."

The Georgian explained that the power company referred to has a temporary contract with the war department and urged that something be done to provide for consumption and sale of all the power which could be produced there. Wright said the government has $40,804,000 invested at Muscle Shoals in the power plant alone.

Representative Crisp, democrat, Georgia, took the floor at the conclusion of Wright's address to say that he had reintroduced the Madden bill to provide for leasing Muscle Shoals to a manufacturer of fertilizers in peace time and for munitions manufacturing in time of war.

COLD CONTINUES TO GRIP NATION

arctic and from the Rocky mountains almost to the Appalachians, that the region in the moon had been equipped with a telescope likely could have seen the enormous white patch.

Trains were hours late into Chicago as the storm started, and city traffic moved slowly as snow plows blocked the streets.

Veritable armies of down-and-outers were lifted by railroads, street car companies and city government to the city's outskirts.

Continuous and intensive work in Chicago since the storm started on Wednesday averted a complete tie-up of traffic such as was experienced during the pre-Christmas blizzard. More than eight inches of snow fell in Chicago, and in some places as much as 15 inches.

Temperatures were reasonably moderate except in the Rocky mountain regions and the northern states. It was 10 degrees below zero at Helena, Mont., and eight below at Helena.

Loss of live stock was large throughout the west.

The unusually heavy precipitation sent rivers gushing over their banks in southern Indiana, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Hundreds of acres of land were flooded in Indiana and 11 highways closed. Lower temperatures brought the prediction that further flood damage was not likely.

More than three score families were driven from their homes in Arkansas and western Tennessee by high rivers which washed out bridges and blocked highways. The muddy overflow of the White river rushed two feet deep through the streets of Richmond, Ark.

VERMONT STREAMS LEAVE BANKS.

SWANTON, Vt., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Residents of a section of this town were prepared to leave their homes tonight as waters of the Missouri river continued to rise, reaching a level higher than in 1927 when a large part of Vermont was flooded.

A temperature of 10 degrees below zero prevailed. It was believed that continuation of the cold weather would prevent further rising of the river. The waters had backed up seven miles from the mouth of the river at Lake Champlain and covered an area over a mile wide.

Farmers in boats were able to reach barns sheltering cattle that had been abandoned. The animals were fed and blanketed. The second ice jam caused the waters to recede to the extent that the stock were no longer standing in icy waters.

Water tonight was from two to three feet under water. More than a score of families were making preparations to go to homes on higher land although it seemed certain that the cold weather would at least temporarily halt the flood conditions.

The Vermont Marble Company plant was three feet under water. More than a score of families were making preparations to go to homes on higher land although it seemed certain that the cold weather would at least temporarily halt the flood conditions.

Shafer Brands Prohibition Enemy of True Temperance In Vigorous Attack on Act

Wisconsin Solon Heaps
Anathema on Dry Law,
Charging It Has Brought Unprecedented Corruption.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The assertion that prohibition has "ushered in an age of corruption, intemperance, disrespect for law and contempt for government such as this nation never before witnessed" was made today in the house by Representative Shafer, republican, Wisconsin.

Making a charge that the "constitution has been changed from a charter of rights and liberties into a criminal statute book," the Wisconsin representative asked:

"How can people respect a constitution that makes the act of temperance a crime?"

Granted an hour by consent of the house, Shafer spoke on the subject of "Prohibition Versus Christianity." "You must choose between prohibition and the Christian religion," he said. "You cannot have both, for they are eternal opposites."

"An unbridgeable gulf separates one from the other, with God and Christ standing on one side and the dry on the other."

Without mentioning names, Shafer said, "The recent hysterical outburst of the four horsemen of the prohibition forces indicates the demoralization in their ranks and that they have reached a realization of the failure of the sumptuary prohibition laws."

He suggested that the "four horsemen" turn their "oratorical guns and attention to the states of Georgia, Idaho, Texas and Nebraska, where a deplorable condition exists today as a result of prohibition."

Senator Harris lives in Georgia, Borah in Idaho, Sheppard in Texas and Howell and Norris in Nebraska. All are dry leaders and have taken a part in the recent record.

"In these states," Shafer said, "under federal prohibition bootlegging, drunkenness, and drunken vehicle drivers have increased tremendously; fundamental rights guaranteed to our people under the constitution flagrantly violated; lives snuffed out without due process of law by irresponsible and fanatical enforcement agents; the privacy of life and the sanctity of the home guaranteed under the constitution ruthlessly violated."

Asserting that the "unwholesome conditions" in the country resulting from prohibition had weakened the "dry case," he declared that "dry leaders" are now endeavoring to open up an avenue of escape from their untenable position by attacking those charged with enforcing the federal prohibition laws.

"Statistics appearing in the press," he continued, "indicate that the dry crusaders realize the fact that information obtained by the federal crime commission would weaken the position of those favoring a continuation of the prohibition laws."

"From a modification standpoint open hearings by the crime commission would be wholesome and enlightening. The people would have a better opportunity of obtaining additional first-hand statistics indicating the general lawlessness and disrespect for law existing throughout the country today as a result of the sumptuary dry laws."

Indefensible

"Certain attacks on the crime commission are indefensible, such as the demand for the removal of one member who called attention to a phase of lawlessness violating sacred rights and liberties guaranteed to our people under the constitution long before the eighteenth amendment was ever conceived."

"The failure of prohibition is inherent in its principle and not due to wrong or faulty methods of enforcement. So long as the American people refuse to recognize the act of drinking as evidence of moral guilt, prohibition will be a failure."

Schafer declared that Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist board of temperance, and other dry leaders demand that the prohibition law be amended to make the buyer equally guilty and added they insisted upon widening the "already impassable gulf between themselves and their God on the drink question."

Quoting numerous passages from the Bible on the use of wine, Schafer said that to dry "who have more respect for Volstead than for divine authority, these texts mean no more than their religion means to God."

SCHOOL BUDGET VETO BY MAYOR EXPECTED

Education Board of Atlanta
Borough Is Asking $3-
779,905.59.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale Friday afternoon began study of the budget of the board of education of the city of Atlanta, which asks $3,779,905.59 for the city for operation and maintenance of the system during 1936.

There was every indication that the mayor would hold the paper in his possession until next Tuesday afternoon, the last day which he has to act on it, and then veto it, it was reported because the finance committee would not have completed making up the 1936 finance sheet.

In offering the budget, Dr. McIntosh M. Burns, president of the board, attached a statement explaining that the board has asked only for urgently needed items. The budget proper calls for an outlay of $3,429,905.59, but a supplementary resolution provides an additional $350,000 for repairs to units of the system.

"The board of education is assured the mayor and general council of Atlanta are cognizant of the responsibility which rests upon their shoulders and that as they allow the funding of various departments of the city they will use every means within their power to see that these necessary funds are provided."

Dr. Burns said in a communication accompanying the proposed budget.

"It is highly important that we have the funds to recondition our school buildings. Only by act of Providence was a probable catastrophe averted at one school (namely Luckie Street school) last year. We found that certain portions of the building had deteriorated from dry rot and a little added load would have caused the entire building to cave in."

Salaries of school teachers, principals, supervisors, janitors and workers in the maintenance department constitute more than 90 per cent of the amount asked in the proposed budget for school operation. Salaries alone amount to $3,069,500.07, according to the figures submitted by Dr. Burns.

Summary of items in the budget include $83,450.72 for general control, including the business administrative department; $2,708,214.57 for instructional service, including salaries of teachers, supervisors, principals and other items; $219,000 for operation of plant, which includes expense of janitor hire, light, power, gas and fuel; $208,858.90 for maintenance of plant, which includes repair of buildings and upkeep of grounds; $8,840 for insurance premiums and contingencies; $5,000 for debt service, embracing interest on short term loans; $118,751.15 for capital outlay, which includes alterations of buildings, lighting and plumbing, and $17,550.45 for auxiliary agencies, in which are grouped certain repairs, replacement of textbooks and health service.

Fruit Quarantine Patrol Inspects 1,000,000 Autos

BY EDWARD STANLEY.
Associated Press Feature Writer.

Clamped over the 500-mile top of Florida, the department of agriculture's quarantine service has stepped out to show just how smuggle-proof a border patrol can be.

Since last May, when the department set up in the fruit fly business, the patrol has been busily bottling the Mediterranean menace within the peninsula.

More than a million automobiles—an average of 150,000 a month—have been halted at the border and searched for forbidden fruits, according to P. A. Hoidal, who is directing the task.

There hasn't been a slip that is known.

"We do not know of a single instance in which a car has crossed the border," said Hoidal.

Cost of the patrol will run under $200,000 for the entire year, he estimated.

Only watermelons, pineapples and nuts may cross the state line via auto for fear of spreading the pest to other regions—Georgia's peach belt, for example, is near, and peaches are a favored host of the fly. The embargo is partially lifted until January 31 on certain carload lots on common carriers.

The patrol operates with a force about 90 normally, but now, at the tourist season's peak, it has been raised to 104.

Stations and patrols run on a 24-hour basis. During the day cars are flagged to a stop. At night torches are used. The patrolmen wear a dark uniform similar to the army's. They are unarmed, but wear badges. The department furnishes sleeping quarters at the stations.

No matter how rude the indignant tourist the inspectors must smile, but be firm.

"Some of the travelers get rather angry, to be sure," said Hoidal, "but we have never had any serious trouble."

"We are very careful in choosing our men and we warn them frequently that courtesy is an absolute requirement. Generally we try them out for a month or more before taking them on permanently."

MAN IDENTIFIED AS BANK THIEF
BY TWO EMPLOYEES

LEESBURG, Va., Jan. 10.—(AP)—William F. Lindsay, 26, of Lovettsville, Va., arrested Monday evening as the alleged robber of a bank at Hamilton, Va., has been identified as the man who robbed the Abbottstown State bank, in Adams county, Pennsylvania, on November 6.

Identification was made by Wilson Bream, cashier of the Abbottstown bank, and Miss Helen Dehoff, a clerk in a Hamilton bank where Lindsay is said to have been foiled in a second attempted hold-up in connection with the robbery.

Both Bream and Miss Dehoff were positive in their identification, police said.

Lindsay, who is accused of robbing the Hamilton bank of $4,264 last Friday, was captured at New Midway, ten miles from Frederick, Md.

Officers Sentenced To Prison Terms
On Liquor Charge

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Two former police chiefs and two former police patrolmen, who were convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, today were sentenced in federal court here to serve penitentiary and jail sentences. They were alleged to have been members of a liquor ring operating in McKeesport, near here.

John F. Brennan, former McKeesport police chief, was sentenced to serve 18 months in Atlanta penitentiary. Charles L. Bergstedt, former police chief of Versailles, a suburb, was sentenced to a term of one year and a day in the penitentiary.

Husband Offers 'Felicity Movie' In Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A "complete motion picture" of his married life to prove that he had provided well for his wife was offered as evidence today by Frederick C. Weiss, dress designer, in his suit for divorce from Mrs. Weiss, a former Berlin model.

Referee Joseph E. Newburger refused the film but took Weiss' petition for divorce under advisement. Mrs. Weiss is suing for separate maintenance.

Weiss said he had placed the motion picture together from scenes taken at various times in their married life to show to her relatives in Germany. They were married in 1923.

Negro School Burns.
MENDENHALL, Miss., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Fire originating in a kitchen annex of the dormitory at the negro girls' school at Piney Woods today laid waste the building and its furnishings and sent 140 students scurrying to safety. The students lost all their personal belongings. The loss was estimated by school officials at $40,000.

Salaries of school teachers, principals, supervisors, janitors and workers in the maintenance department constitute more than 90 per cent of the amount asked in the proposed budget for school operation. Salaries alone amount to $3,069,500.07, according to the figures submitted by Dr. Burns.

PARIS TAXICAB DRIVERS STRIKE ON HIGHER FARES

PARIS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Nearly every taxi driver belonging to the union in Paris went on strike today in protest against the decision of the Paris municipal council to raise the tariff of cab fares.

The drivers, most of whom work for large companies, complained that the companies would be the chief beneficiaries by the increase and that they themselves would only gain a corresponding decrease in tips. Out of 6,800 drivers in the union 6,507 joined the strike.

The absence of automobile cabs caused the reappearance in the streets of antiquated horse cabs, the time-honored "fiacre," which had a great success.

COAST GUARD SEEKS LONE MAN ADRIFT OFF DIXIE COAST

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Three coast guard cutters and the entire coast guard unit, ashore and afloat, from Norfolk to Hatteras, are searching for a lone man, reported to be adrift in the Atlantic in a skiff off Frying Pan shoals, North Carolina.

Coast guard headquarters at Norfolk was notified today by wireless from the American steamer Commercial Guide that she had passed a small fishing smack at the Frying Pan shoals and whistle buoy, and that the latter craft reported the loss of one man and a skiff last night. The steamer reported that she made a search for the missing boat and its lone occupant, but found no trace of either, and was proceeding south-eastward.

Coast guard headquarters here immediately ordered the cutters Modoc, from Wilmington, N. C., and the Manning and Mascoutin from the Norfolk station, to take up the search. Coast guard stations all along the coast also were directed to keep a lookout for the missing skiff and its occupant.

University of Georgia Pays $72,000 During 1929 Season on New Stadium

Chancellor Snelling Submits Report to Board of Trustees in Mid-Winter Session at Athens.

REPUBLICANS SETTLE COMMITTEE CONTEST

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The "tone" of jokes and comment in undergraduate publications at the University of Georgia in time past was criticized today by Thomas P. Green, of Athens, a member of the board of trustees, at a meeting of the board.

In the presence of representatives of the three publications, the Cracker, the annual, and the Red and Black, a weekly newspaper, Green said he referred particularly to "jokes of a vulgar nature" which he said had appeared in the Cracker. He said that four years ago he had read an attack on the prudential committee of the board, of which he is a member, in the Red and Black, and also had seen a severe criticism of the committee in the Pandora two years ago.

The representatives of the publications were before the board to discuss financing of the publications. Two of them are now financed out of registration fees and the same plan was advocated for the third publication, the Pandora.

The annual report of Chancellor C. M. Snelling, presented at today's meeting, was praised by the board of trustees as one of the best ever made by a chancellor of the university.

In his report, Chancellor Snelling said that the present enrollment of the university is 1,512, an increase of 60 over last year. Almost half of the increase, he said, was made up of students taking courses in the College of Agriculture.

The report revealed that the university at present has a total of $796,961.16 in funds for student costs.

The chancellor reported that the graduate school has a total of 300 students and plans are now being considered to offer fellowships to deserving individuals.

Referring to athletics at the University of Georgia, Chancellor Snelling said $72,000 had been paid during the last season on the new stadium. This compared with the $36,000 per year that is due on the $180,000 stadium loan.

While expressing the opinion that the Carnegie report on scholarships and commercialism of athletics in American institutions "was made by gentlemen with no gray hairs on their heads," he said that the evils are real and constitute a problem that can and should be solved measurably at least, by the institutions themselves.

No Pretense.

He said that in the matter of athletic scholarships, "the university has not been party to any sort of pretense." He advocated some sort of plan whereby students of athletic ability might avail themselves of their skill as a means of paying college expenses.

"Such a plan," he said, "would have merit of openness at least, and do away with much of the suspicion and gossip now directed against intercollegiate athletics."

Chancellor Snelling said that contrary to reports, the University of Georgia aided the Carnegie investigation and that the report in time to be published in that regard was apparently based on failure of the investigators to receive a certain report which was made to them in time to be included in their report, but which, for some unaccountable reason, was never received.

Extension courses were given last year in 142 counties of the state, he said, and 55 students in other states were enrolled in correspondence courses.

Negro Education.

The chancellor announced that in order to serve the cause of negro education the department of secondary education is arranging to hold a meeting in Macon, January 17-18, of the heads of all negro colleges and high schools in the state, when the whole problem of secondary education for negroes will be discussed.

Chancellor Snelling announced that President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, will deliver the annual Robert R. Lee address on January 19, and that Georgia Day address will be given by D. G. Rickers, associate editor of the Savannah Morning News. The baccalaureate service will be given by Bishop H. J. Mikell, of Atlanta, and the baccalaureate address by Norman H. Davis, undersecretary of the state in the Wilson administration.

The religious welfare address will be delivered by Dean Emeritus Charles Reynolds Brown, of the Yale Divinity school, and the Barrow foundation lectures will be made by Rollo Brown, the author, and Count Von Luckner, of Berlin.

Since the meeting of the trustees last June, donations to the university have totaled $41,000, he said. The chancellor submitted for the information of the board a letter from the Association of College and Secondary Schools of the Southern States in which it was pointed out that the University of Georgia receives one of the smallest appropriations from the state per student in the whole association, and that the number of students in proportion to the size of the faculty is large.

Commenting on the projected alumni survey of the state's higher educational institutions, Chancellor Snelling said that the organized active support of the alumni is necessary for the growth of the institution, but that therefore the alumni interest has centered over much in matters other than those most vital to the university.

The chancellor reiterated the need for an educational survey of the state. He concluded his report with the statement that notwithstanding its limited resources, the university is making real progress in the advancement of the state.

Catarrh is Terrible Drain on Vitality

Find a man, woman or child who is afflicted with catarrh of the nose and its connecting air passages and you will always find a patient who is most susceptible to more serious diseases. Why? Science explains that catarrh interferes with natural breathing thus preventing proper purification of the blood by the lungs and also prevents refreshing sleep. Catarrh is a constant drain upon the nutrition of the body, making the patient weak and thereby susceptible to diseases such as head and chest colds.

Your physician will tell you that catarrh is a local condition, not a systemic disease. You must fight it constantly with a local remedy that reaches the spot. Of the many remedies that have been tested by Nose and Throat Specialists to relieve the irritation and reduce the congestion of the mucous membrane the most effective and agreeable are those contained in the preparation known to your druggist as Runion's White Wonder Salve. Applied in the nose, morning and night, Runion's White Wonder Salve gives quick and most delightful relief from the irritation and congestion. MANY DELEGATES QUIT REPARATIONS PARLEY

Departures Give Rise To Rumors That Questions Are Settled.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The leading delegates at a second session of The Hague conference on reparations already are beginning to leave the city of peace and arbitration, although there is as yet nothing definitely on paper to register adoption of the Young plan.

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, took the North Star express for Paris today with Geneva and the sessions of the council of the League of Nations as his ultimate destination. Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, of Germany, is getting ready to join him there at the beginning of the week. Other delegates are beginning to consider apprehensively whether they are going to have any time after the conference to prepare for the London naval meeting.

The big six representatives talked together again today. The private conversations went on without anything developing to show whether agreement on any question had been brought nearer. The French and British remain optimistic and hope everything will be threshed out by Tuesday evening, but Dr. Curtius has planned to get back from Geneva on Thursday.

The leading delegates today were guests of the Foreign Journalists' Association at a luncheon in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the existence of the League of Nations. Premier Tardieu, of France, assured the newspapermen that France was in earnest behind the movement for final and thorough stabilization of peace. Chancellor Philipp Snowden, and Henri Cléon, French financial minister, today took up the question of commercialization and capitalization of the bank for international settlements which was being discussed in committee and in hotel apartments to get somewhere in reconciling Austria and Bulgaria with their creditors.

WOMEN TO DISCUSS PART IN NAVAL CUT

BY SUE McNAMARA,
Associated Press Feature Service
Writer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Five women, representing five great nations, are on their way to Washington to discuss what women can do to support their governments in steps taken at the naval limitation conference in London. They will act as delegates from Japan, Germany, England, France and the United States at the conference on the cause and cure of war which opens here January 14.

This will be the first presentation of the viewpoints of other nations at the conference since it was organized five years ago. At the four previous sessions only American speakers appeared.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran white-haired fighter for women's causes for nearly 50 years, arrived today to welcome the five international delegates and the 500 women representing organizations in this country. Mrs. Catt is national chairman of the conference, which she founded.

The five women delegates will hold an open forum January 17 to discuss the causes and cures of war from viewpoints gained in their individual countries. The delegates are Kathleen D. Courtney, of England; Frau Dorothee Von Velsen, of Germany; Madame Marie-Louise Puech, of France; Madame Tsune Gauntlett, of Japan; and Miss Ruth Morgan, of the United States.

All are leaders of peace movements in their respective countries. Several have seen the ugliness of war at close range and wear service decorations. They will urge more international pacts and arbitration treaties as the best means of abolishing war. They will discuss methods for enforcing treaties already made.

Kathleen Courtney is honorary secretary of the British women's peace crusade which she helped organize and which worked for peace during the Kellogg pact. She was decorated by the Serbian government for relief work among refugee children.

Frau Dorothee Von Velsen, of Germany, was in civil service in the occupied districts of Belgium and the Ukraine during the war. Last summer she organized the Berlin congress of women.

Madame Marie-Louise Puech, of France, has been connected with the peace movement there since 1908. She also wears a war decoration for her work among refugee children. She helps edit La Paix Par Le Droit, a monthly magazine.

Madame Tsune Gauntlett is vice president of the Japan Women's Christian Temperance Union. She helped organize the Japan Women's Peace Association. She is the wife of an English professor in the Tokyo University of Commerce.

Emory, Kentucky Debaters Argue At Local Church

Kentucky university and Emory Friday night completed a series of three debates in Atlanta before an audience of about 200 at Stewart Avenue Methodist church. Split teams, consisting of one Kentucky and one Emory man with audience decisions, debated in two meetings.

"Resolved, That modern science tends to destroy theistic faith" was discussed before the Stewart Avenue audience. Sidney Schell, representing Kentucky, and F. A. Settle, of Emory, upheld the affirmative, and Richard Weaver, of Kentucky, and Earl Milner, of Emory, spoke on the negative side. Douglas McKee, former Emory varsity debater, presided. Otis Cook, president of the Stewart Avenue Episcopalian church, sponsored the debate, made the arrangements for the contest.

Thursday night, before an audience composed of Episcopalian Leaguers of the Druid Hills Methodist church, the same lineup was used in a contest on the same subject. In both instances the audience favored the affirmative side of the question.

Friday morning at Decatur High school, before an audience of about 300 students, Bill Woodruff and Warren Cox, of Emory, spoke on the affirmative side of "Resolved, That international war can be prevented through the instrument of international agreement." Richard Weaver and Sidney Schell, debating on the negative, received the vote of the audience.

The series of debates off the campus opened Emory's forensic season. Approximately 25 contests, including Pittsburgh, Princeton, Johns Hopkins, Georgia Tech, Southern Methodist and

UTILITIES DEFENDED BEFORE FEDERAL BOARD

Counsel Seeks To Read Into Record Approval of College Activity.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Undertaking a general defense of public utility associations in their relations with educational institutions, D. F. Weadock, counsel for the joint committee of National Utility Associations, sought unsuccessfully today to enter into the federal trade commission's record resolutions of various groups approving the conduct of college professors who had been employed.

Ruling that opinions of outside bodies had no place in the commission's investigation of utility publicity methods, Commissioner McCulloch excluded a resolution of the state senate of Nebraska and another adopted by the board of trustees of the University of Alabama clearing two professors of impropriety in their employment by utility companies or associations while connected with the universities of the two states.

A document relating to a plan of the Association of University Professors for adoption of a code of ethics to govern the relation of professors with industrial concerns was rejected on the same ground.

The hearing was continued until next Tuesday, Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway & Power Company and a former president of the National Electric Light Association, then will take the stand as the first witness presented by the utilities.

Weadock introduced a survey of public utility relations with universities made by a committee headed by C. O. Ruggles, formerly of the Ohio State University and now connected with the Harvard school of business. Ruggles' committee had been the subject of considerable investigation and it was shown that he was in the pay of utilities.

The professors in whose behalf Weadock sought to introduce the resolution were V. L. Hollister, professor of electrical engineering at the University of Nebraska, and Dr. Thomas, of the bureau of research, University of Alabama. Only a few of the 501 college professors named in the hearing, Weadock said, had been employed in other than professional capacities.

COURT ACTION REVEALS PICKFORD EARNINGS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The motion picture colony at Hollywood today got a glimpse of figures on the earnings of Mary Pickford, who appeared in probate court yesterday and testified about her income in connection with the estate of her mother, Mrs. Charles Pickford Smith, who died in March, 1928.

Miss Pickford protested the levying of inheritance taxes against her mother's estate amounting to $38,284 in addition to the $25,000 the state already has collected.

The actress contended that the state law was not entitled to the additional tax on the ground that $780,000 of Mrs. Smith's $1,100,000 estate was in trust funds held jointly by mother and daughter, the survivor to inherit all.

Miss Pickford, wearing a rose veil over a close-fitting brown felt hat, a simple skirt slightly more than knee length, and a brown mink coat, braved a rainstorm to appear in court.

Among other things, she testified that in 1917 she saved $420,000 out of a $500,000 salary, just after the war, in 1919, she said she was earning $10,000 a week. The following year she began producing her own pictures.

The actress testified that she paid her mother $20,000 a year salary in 1916 and $25,000 a year in 1917 and 1918. Asked what her mother did to deserve the salary, Miss Pickford said:

"Oh, she was taking care of our personal expenses, donations and paying the bills. The children, Jack and Lottie, lived with her and she was the head of the family. Her services were very valuable."

At conclusion of the hearing, Superior Judge Harry Hollister ordered the attorneys to prepare briefs and submit them Tuesday.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Physicians attending Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer, of Milwaukee, Wis., stricken with a brain affection while visiting in Louisiana, reported his condition as improved today.

The aged prelate, dean in years of the Catholic church episcopacy in the United States and for 29 years head of the Milwaukee diocese, entered a sanitarium operated by Franciscan Sisters here two weeks ago when a chronic malady recurred while he was resting on the shores of Lake Pontchartrain, in southeast Louisiana. Late yesterday he was reported to have contracted a cold and to be threatened with pneumonia. His age, 82 years, made his condition serious, his physicians announced. He is the oldest Catholic archbishop in the United States. Msgr. A. J. Krieg, head of the St. Francis Seminary in Milwaukee, who accompanied the archbishop south, returning home two weeks ago, came back to Baton Rouge tonight to remain in attendance during the prelate's illness.

Archbishop Messmer, a native of Switzerland, is well known for his contributions to church literature. He received his Doctor of Divinity degree from Pope Leo XIII in 1885, and was made a Doctor of Catholic Literature by the pontiff in 1900.

Alabama will follow. Such a series of debates with one institution such as with Kentucky is an innovation for Emory, but a successful one, the debate manager stated.

INSTALLMENT XXX.
CAR FOR SALE.

John Andrew paused until the waiter had set fresh plates, cups (with shields in yellow and red blazoned on the china), rolls and sweet butter before them. "I'll not fool you any more, Anne. Now, while you're eating all the nice soup, I'm going to tell you the story of a young man, who—"

"Only promise me one thing," Anne asked fervently. "Please, dear, don't try to be something you aren't."

"I'll do the best I can."

They were both silent. John Andrews stopped from his notion of explanation, Anne because she was thinking of a dozen things; around them the hum of voices, the odor of perfect food, and, at intervals, the hissing-boom of the orchestra.

"There is one thing I want to ask," said the girl (and John Andrew shivered), "do you think Mr. Armstrong, the director, will let me have a day off, next week, when we . . . are married?"

Kellogg, recalling Carey's conversation about Anne's future, and the actor's fears for it, said only, "Be temperamental. Get an attack of nerves."

"When I think about things I'm almost that way without making it up."

"You didn't feel that way when we were driving around."

"That's the strange part of it. When you've got your arms around me I don't think at all. Sit down, John Andrew."

"Don't see how I came to order so much food," grumbled Kellogg. "If I'd used some sense, we'd be out of here by now. And then—"

Anne smiled at him; pain, happiness, tenderness, misery, were all in her face.

And at the next table: "He looks, this John Andrew, dark enough to be of Spanish descent, doesn't he? There's a lot of dark people here. Maybe they like so much pepper."

every one told us to be sure to eat here if we wanted Spanish cooking—but I'd rather have good American cooking." (The chefs were French and Swiss, the menu polyglot.)

"I don't see how Spaniards can eat nothing but tamales and red pepper. Going to eat at a dairy lunch tomorrow."

But the Spanish room served its purpose. Every guest was given either a small black fan (made in Japan) or a package of brown-papered cigars (made in Porto Rico) and left happily enough. So, when the dinner was over, did John Andrew and Anne, both of whom (like conquistadores and the later argonauts) had—each in a different way—come to make their fortune.

It was Anne who said, "I'll telephone you, but you mustn't see me until next week," although John Andrew, difficult as it would have been, was going to propose the same thing. Otherwise, he would need excuses, need to explain what had happened to the Mercury, which, in the morning—Friday—must be sold.

"It's a dream of a car," Anne said, as the custom built roadster leaped out after being stopped by a red light. "I know we can't afford it, but—"

"Not a such a hot wagon. Some day we'll get a—"

Anne held up a warning finger, and John Andrew, bending, kissed it.

The telephone book showed a Mercury airframe, Mercury bakery, Mercury cafeteria, Mercury pharmacy, but no Mercury motors; Kellogg finally headed toward the automobile district, after asking where it was located, intending to go to one of the finer salesrooms, where high-priced cars were sold, and there turn the custom built roadster into what he needed.

With practically all of his troubles behind him, John Andrew was jubilant; he was already, in mind, wording the telegram he would send to Craig; he wished he might see the old attorney's face when the message arrived. He had been shaved carefully; his cravat was knotted to his taste; the coffee had been perfect, and the day was going to be the same. John Andrew almost had bought a flower for his buttonhole.

The day's business was (a) sell the Mercury, (b) wire $500 to San Francisco, (c) pay the hotel bill, and (d) wait for the answer to his telegraphed requisition to Blake's demand, after which—

"You're the cream in my coffee," John Andrew whistled as he stopped the jade green machine before a neo-Castilian automobile showroom.

He had slept well; the world was about to be completely his oyster, and he was well known to have an excellent appetite. If Anne's voice did not register properly, she would be tremendously downcast, but John Andrew believed that there would be enough of a shock and surprise coming to her that she'd forget all about sound pictures, and about her disappointment. "I'll keep her so busy that she won't have time to be unhappy," thought John Andrew. What, however, if her voice, through some magic of the engineering staff, did manage to be correctly recorded? John Andrew wondered if he would be justified in asking Fitzgerald, who was a decent chap, not to work too hard on the problem; this idea he dismissed before it was fully conceived. Not fair to Anne.

Considering the perplexities which had already been Kellogg's, he gave little thought to this one. Luck, his luck, had changed. There had been Anne. More, he had been repaid a loan!

He strode into the automobile showroom much the same John Andrew who hailed his friends in New York hotels, head up (although it had never been down far), well groomed, completely assured.

It took considerable explanation before he was able to convince the first salesman that he neither wanted to buy a car, nor to turn in his Mercury for the sort sold here—the Mercury (the salesman said) was fast enough, but would it stand up? And could you get parts for it anywhere? And was it all made in the same factory? And did it have a non-shattering windshield, and where was its resale value?

Here John Andrew stopped him, saying that he trusted that the resale value was fairly high, as he wanted to sell the roadster, outright. Rather doubtfully, the salesman directed him to one of the assistant managers.

"Why don't you turn it in on a Bradstreet?" the assistant manager asked John Andrew. "We can give you a good allowance and—"

"I want to sell the car," said Kellogg briefly. "If you can't see your way clear to make me an offer, who would you suggest?"

"We aren't in the used car trade."

"I realize that. But the Mercury's less than a week old, and, frankly, I expect you to offer me an amount which will allow you to make a profit in selling it."

"Less than a week old? You didn't buy it here?"

"If I had," said Kellogg. "I'd have gone to the agency I bought it from, but there isn't a Mercury place in Los Angeles. I bought it in San Francisco."

"Less than a week ago? And drove down?"

"That's right," said John Andrew. "And I want to sell it—this morning." He felt the snappy businessman, who could even sell corner lots. "How about it?"

"Forty-nine hundred and eighty," Kellogg told him.

"The usual price of a Mercury?"

"This is a custom built job. You ought to find some movie star will buy it from you. The car's in perfect condition; I wouldn't sell it, but I am forced to do so."

"Might I ask—this is unusual, you know—why are you so anxious to sell it?"

"Yes," said John Andrew, "you can ask, but I'm afraid I don't see any reason for telling you."

A pause, and then the automobile man said, "Naturally, if you don't care to say—I suppose the car is registered in your name?"

"And paid for. According to the Mercury people in San Francisco, I bought it. In other words, it belongs to me. Now, if you aren't interested, who might be?"

"I don't say we were not interested. If the price is not too high—what would you say to—two thousand, even?"

PI PI MEMBERS ENTERTAIN AT DANCE AT DRIVING CLUB

Members College Contingent Assemble for Formal Affair

The members of the Pi Pi Sorority of Washington seminary were hostesses last evening at an elaborate formal ball at the Piedmont Driving Club, which assembled a large group of the members of the younger and college sets of Atlanta. The beautiful ballroom was decorated with bowers of silvered smilax, which was artistically arranged throughout the spacious room. At the far end of the room the huge open fire was burning, and quantities of the smilax combined with vari-colored flowers was banded on the mantle. The color scheme was carried out in blue and gold, which are the colors of the sorority. At the near end of the ballroom, over the entrance, was placed a tremendous shield of gold and blue with the large letters "PI PI" illuminated in the center. The shield was in the shape of a Pi Pi pin, a large circle with the gold scythe crossing in the center.

PI Pi Lead Out.

During the evening the members of the sorority, both active and inactive, and their escorts, lined up for the Pi Pi lead out, a dance which only the members and their escorts took part in, the floor being cleared of the other dancers. Old World Life Is Reflected In Nordhausen Exhibit

Sidelights of old world life are reflected in the exhibit of A. Henry Nordhausen, of New York, prominent young American artist, whose work is on view in the auditorium gallery of the High Museum of Art, 1282 Peachtree street. The oil portrait, "The Poet," presents an erstwhile well-known poet and playwright, who now is compelled by necessity to pose for a living. The humor and the pathos of the story are manifested in the expressive canvas. "The Two Dolls," an oil study of two awkward little creatures of plaster, sawdust and bright-colored garbs, was done from dolls made by children of a German orphan's home. The water color study, "Renaissance Door in Rotterdam," is a typical example of a bit of architecture of the 14th and 15th centuries. "Man With Red Beard" suggests the canvases of Rembrandt, a remarkable warmth of color having been obtained by underpainting in red and painting afterward richly in color. The exhibit is open to the public.

Without a doubt Arthur the Great Shires, White Sox first baseman, matched in an Atlanta ring with Nick Cullop, the Cracker outfielder, would be a gold mine for any promoter.

The question came up for discussion at the daily meeting of those who know just what has been ailing with Atlanta as a boxing center and how to cure it. The general opinion was that Shires and Cullop would be an S. R. O. card.

Which proves conclusively that Atlanta is not what the trade calls "a good fight town." Atlanta wants personalities, not boxing per se.

Atlanta will flock to see Jack Dempsey and Young Stribling. Atlanta always attended when the late Tiger Flowers fought. But the everyday run of pretty fair fighters have drawn little more than waffle money. Good boxing shows with home-town phenoms and neighborhood talent have starved for years.

If Atlanta were a red-hot center of the leather flinging industry, it would not care particularly to see the sort of boxing Shires and Cullop would deliver.

WHAT A LINE!

Down in ol' N'Yawleens, Bill Keefe in the Times-Picayune finds time between his horse experting to peer into the future and envision Tulane's rush line for next year.

Here is the way he sees it:

Tulane's line carried her to the Southern conference championship in 1929 and what a line for next year!

"Preacher" Roberts, the undisputed champion center of the conference! Morris Bodenger, who missed an all-conference position simply because the greatest guards the conference ever saw beat him out; Jerry Dalrymple, ranked by most rival coaches as the best football player in the conference and certainly the best end; Jack Holland, whom many local football fans think is as good as Jerry; "Red" McCormick and Elmer McCasne, whose work in the Tulane line was just as valuable as that of almost any linemen in the south.

That's a line for big Ted Cox to start with next year. It is Ted's own line, too, as he developed it piece by piece. He'll miss Charlie Rucker, but the improvement others will show will nearly make up for Rucker's departure from the combination, to say nothing of what development may take place in Rucker's shoes.

Think of another super line with that irresistible and immovable young giant Roberts, as its center. There is a lad who may make southern football fans forget Peter Pund next year. All he has to do is improve half as much in 1930 as he did in 1929. Why "Preacher" himself is a good enough foundation to start any line on, but when a coach has both ends of his line settled and the center position so well taken care of that it can be forgotten, you might say his line troubles are few—and far between.

SCHEDULE NO HINDRANCE.

In addition to that line, one notes that the Tulane athletic council thoughtfully has scheduled Birmingham-Southern on the Saturday just before the great line is to face Georgia Tech.

A schedule maker with presence of mind often can do the work of two great tackles—yet he never gets a letter, save possibly an anonymous one from an irate supporter of a rival institution.

WHERE ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD.

The season's prize for heroic deeds should go to the National Boxing Association. It has undertaken to supervise wrestling.

Haven't the boys taken enough punishment from the boxers they have tried to classify?

And wouldn't the public be surprised if the wrestling fraternity proved more amenable to discipline than the boxers?

PETE SAUER HONORED.

The N. B. A. classified the five ranking heavyweights as Sonnenberg, Shikat, Pesek, Londos and Sauer.

The Sauer listed is Pete Sauer, who made his sensational Atlanta debut as "The Masked Marvel." Pete is a very interesting grappler at that and is highly regarded by the boys here.

A CORRECTION.

From a Wake Forest alumnus comes a correction on the subject matter of one of Bob Edgren's sports cartoons that this department is glad to print:

In The Constitution under "The Miracles of Sport," by Edgren, there is an account of a record punt by Harry Rabenhorst. The record is correct, but, the details are confusing.

This record was established by Harry Rabenhorst in 1919, while playing as halfback and captain of Wake Forest (N. C.) It was the annual Thanksgiving game, being played with North Carolina State at Riddick field, Raleigh. Rabenhorst was 10 yards behind his goal and punted a perfect spiral for 85 yards, it being touched by Captain Runt Faucet, of State. The ball continued to roll for a distance of 34 yards more and it was recovered by Johnnie Johnston, left end for Wake Forest, for a touchdown. According to all available data this established the world's record for the longest punt and quickest length of field touchdown, in same play.

The smaller schools of today are apparently unable to compete in sports with our larger universities, thus, we have to rehearse our past records and leave it to the alumni of our larger schools to boast of the present.

So, we will appreciate your calling this to the attention of Mr. Edgren in order that we may receive our credit. This confusion was probably brought about by the fact that Mr. Rabenhorst is now on the coaching staff of the Louisiana State University.

The Quintero-Mandell fight in Miami Beach was called off on account of rain. Will the elements never lay off the groggy old state of Florida? I would hate to encounter Steve Hannagan, the cheery publicity director of Miami Beach, right now. Steve takes every inch of rainfall during the winter tourist season as a personal affront. It never rains anything but anvils and raspberries for Steve from December to March.

Mrs. Helen Moody Against Changes

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(P)—Mrs. Helen Williams Moody votes an emphatic "no" on the proposal that tennis players be limited to one serve instead of the customary two.

"Everybody would have a 'pop' serve," declared the hard-hitting woman champion of the world in response to a nation-wide survey of player opinion conducted by the magazine Tennis.

"Why change firmly established points of the game?" asked Queen Helen in taking the negative on another suggestion—that of playing over net cord shots occurring during rallies. "Tennis should have all the tradition it can have."

"Net cord balls add to the fun of playing—the chance shot is the amusing one."

A majority of the country's players agreed that neither change is desirable.

Watkins Appointed To Schedule Body

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 10.—(P)—Thomas R. Watkins, president of the Memphis club of the Southern Association, today was named chairman of the schedule committee of the league, succeeding the late A. J. Heinemann of New Orleans, it was announced by John D. Martin, association president.

Martin Heinemann, secretary of the New Orleans club also was appointed to the committee. Jack Whaley, Nashville, is the third member.

A meeting of the committee will be called by President Martin soon.

Special Meeting.

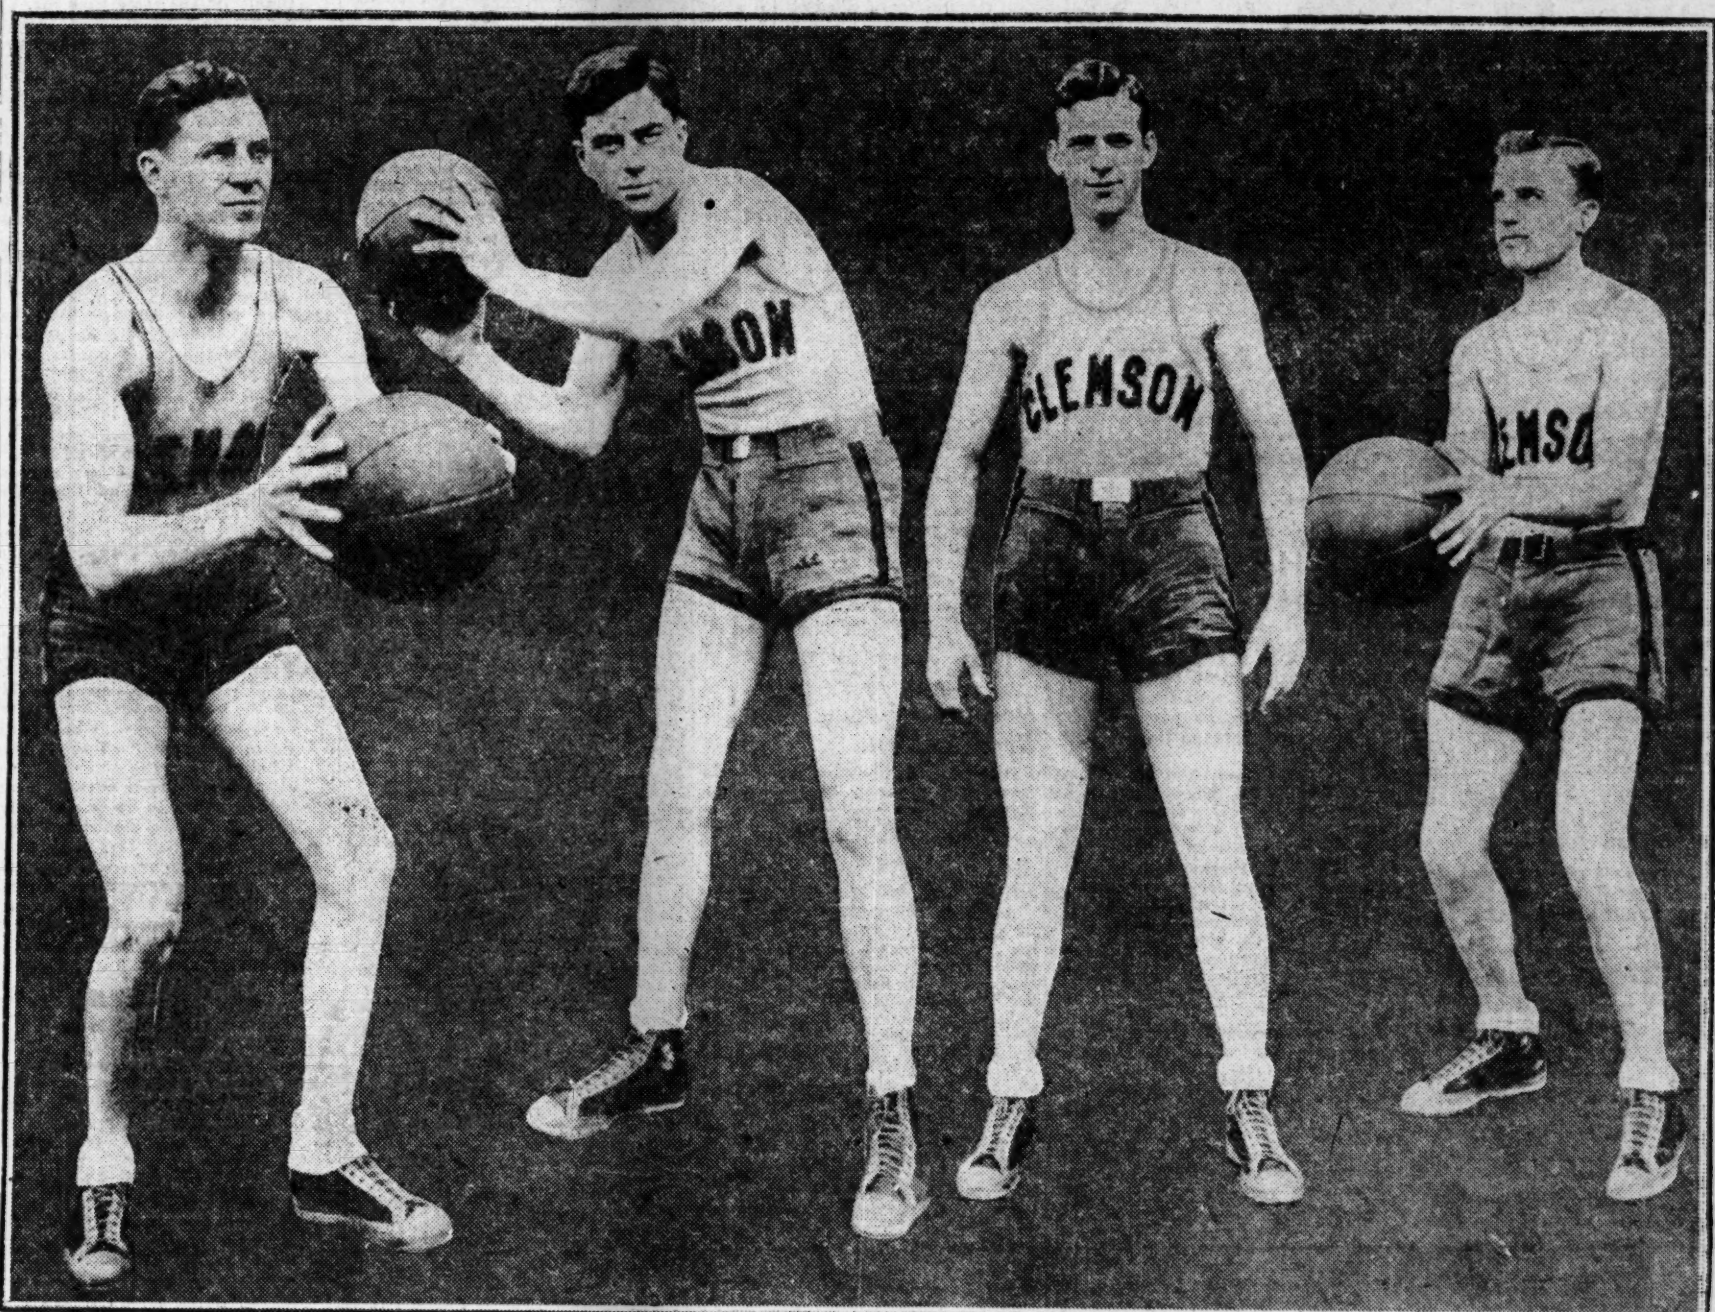

WAXCROSS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—The Eleventh District High School Association, which embraces 21 towns and schools, will hold a special meeting during recent practice which would indicate that the A. A. C. is in for no light evening when the two teams meet.

Atlanta's other major team, the Y. M. C. A. quintet, will travel to Greenville, S. C., to meet the Furman court squad.

Clemson Returns To Test New Yellow Jacket Five

Josh Cody's Clemson basketball team will invade the Tech gym tonight for a game with the new edition of the Yellow Jacket court team. It was Cody's men who shattered Tech's hopes in the Southern conference tournament last year. The Tigers stopped the Jackets in the first round. Shown above are four Tigers who will be seen in action tonight. On the extreme left is Ted Crain, lanky center, who is expected to have a great season on the court. Next is Captain Bob Jones, who plays a good game at guard. "Foggy" Woodruff, next, is another stellar guard product of Coach Cody. Doodles Thomas, little forward, is shown on the right. He is just as big as his mates when it comes to playing basketball.

Jackets Seek Revenge for Tourney Defeat by Tigers Last Year.

By Herb Clark.

Atlanta's basketball fans are in for a big evening tonight. Their entertainment program is filled to the brim.

Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets, fresh from their battle with the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina, will take on Clemson's Tigers, who will come over from the "loveliest village" after a set-to with the Tigers of Auburn.

To a rank outsider—Johnny Rogers, of Denver—went the honors today of turning in a sub-par card of 71, one under standard figures, while each and every luminary of American golf now on the ground was forced to be content with scores reaching amazingly high totals.

Rogers, unused and unnoticed, clubbed his way down a course made doubly difficult through unusual weather conditions. He conquered Riviera with an outgoing nine of 34, one under par, and rode home on the crest of a wave of praise that brought cheers from the spectators waiting at the 18th green.

Trapped by the trickery of the elements and dead greens, Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., young pro sensation; Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, P. G. A. champion, and Denny Shute, of Columbus, Ohio, worked their way around the course in 73 strokes each.

MacDonald Smith, winner of this event the last two years and a favorite to repeat, faltered in his putting game and took a 39-77. Far behind, Walter Hagen, of Detroit, scored up to an 81.

The "Hag," holder of various important titles in the world at times, cracked wide open for a 41-40 to practically eliminate himself from the important money. Both his long and short games were off.

Former national open title holders, Tommy Armour, of Detroit, and Johnny Farrell, of St. Augustine, Fla., had first rounds of 34-40-74, and 35-38-76. Armour's outgoing nine was one under par but his game went to pieces coming in. Two other veteran campaigners, Bobby Cruickshank, of New York, and Abe Espinosa, of Chicago, finished the first day in the 74 class.

Young Seaver led the way for the amateurs with his 72, while George Von Elm, of Detroit, former champion, turned the layout in 87-80-76. Johnny Dawson, Simon pure from Chicago, had a 39-38-77.

YOUTH SERVED AT LOS ANGELES

Young Pro, Schoolboy Amateur Lead in $10,000 Open.

By Russel J. Newland.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

RIVIERA COUNTRY CLUB, LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—Crouched behind a bulwark of sudden fairways, distressingly slow greens and gusts of wind that darted in and out of this canyon course, Old Man Par resisted all but one attack on his strong hold today in the first round of the annual 72-hole $10,000 Los Angeles open golf championship.

To a rank outsider—Johnny Rogers, of Denver—went the honors today of turning in a sub-par card of 71, one under standard figures, while each and every luminary of American golf now on the ground was forced to be content with scores reaching amazingly high totals.

Carnera Signed With Peterson

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(United News).—Primo Carnera, 280-pound Italian heavyweight, will make his first appearance in this country against Big Boy Peterson, of New Orleans, at Madison Square Garden January 24.

The New York State Athletic commission approved a 10-round bout between them today.

Mandell-Quintero Bout Is Postponed

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 10.—(P)—A drizzling rain tonight brought postponement of the scheduled 10-round fight between Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Manuel Quintero, Cuban cavalier.

Wednesday night, January 15, was set as the date for the fight. The bout was called off before the first preliminary had been announced, and while fight fans were gathering in the outdoor arena. The fight was to have opened Metropolitan Miami's 1930 program of major fistic attractions tonight.

The principals to the bout expressed disappointment that it had been postponed. Mandell weighed in this afternoon, tipping the scales at 137 1/2 pounds, while the Cuban cavalier weighed 138 1/2, one-half pound more than his contract called for. The excess was waived, however, by Eddie Kane, the champion's manager.

Art Wins, As Usual.

DOSTON, Jan. 10.—(United News).—Chicago's "Great One," Arthur Shires, who does his training along oratorical lines, added Spohrer to his list of knockout victims here tonight. The verbose visitor was declared the winner on a technical knockout in the fourth round of the scheduled six-round bout when Bobby Goldman, Spohrer's second, leaped into the ring and stopped the fight.

Although the end did not come until one minute and twenty seconds of the fourth round, the beginning of the end was apparent in the second round, when the White Sox first baseman landed a hard right flush on the "Brave" catcher's chin. It was the only knockout of the fight.

Basque Downs Otto Von Porat.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(P)—Fighting back fiercely from the valley of the deep fog, the ancient Wood Chopper from Spain, grim Paulino Uzcudun, carved a few chunks from the middle of lanky Otto Von Porat to night and won a fight after 16,000 of the faithful were ready to start singing the old Bezar's swan song.

For three rounds the tall, lantern-jawed schoolmaster from Norway poured right-hand volleys into the Spaniard's head until the glaring light above must have been swimming in a sea of fireworks.

JACKETS DEFEAT GAMECOCKS, 31-16

Goldin and Wages Shine; Tech's Defense Works Perfectly.

Flashing an early powerful defense and a second half drive for points, the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech, turned in a 31-16 victory over the South Carolina Gamecocks in the first round of the Southern conference basketball game, played at the gym at the Tech Flats Friday night.

Fully 900 persons, packed the gymnasium to watch the Jackets go through the motions of humbling the visitors, who came heralded by reports of two overwhelming victories in their first pair of starts. The public was not disappointed. The Jackets clearly demonstrated their superiority in every department of the game, their first at home.

Coach Roy Munderoff, Jacket mentor, started his shock troops, who are in themselves a good team. "Doc" Coker, leading the attack by accurate pegs from the corners, tallied six markers to aid the Jacket cause during the first period. The Tech total went up to 13 by the combined efforts of the remainder of the throng which carried the burden.

Tate, Warner, Maree, and Brooke all saw service at the guard posts and held the Gamecocks to an 11-point score at the half-way mark. The Tech five-man defense, with the guards as final bulwarks, proved almost impregnable to the visitors, who were able to penetrate for but two field goals, tallying another pair from near midcourt.

Lillard, floor guard, came very close to gleaming another marker from short range but hopped astride of Bill Tate and found his horse faltering to let him down on the floor none too gently, so that he was out of the picture for a few moments. He resumed play, however.

The Jacket varsity took over the task in the second half and completely subdued the Gamecocks, scoring 18 points to a total of 31 by the visitors.

"Ginny" Wages grabbed most of the honors during the half, scurrying all over the court to score five points, do his bit at keeping the Carolinians away from the basket and help out with the floor work.

Captain Sid Goldin was the big cog in the smoothness of the Jacket attack, acting as field general from his post near the center of the court and passing accurately. His work at taking Gamecock misses from the backboard and sending the ball down the court was another factor in the Tech success.

Bedendough, with five points, was high-point man for the Gamecocks and starred as a floor man, while DuPre and Pritchard also did well for the visitors.

The Jackets play their second game of the season tonight, meeting Clemson.

MILTON STOCK ENTHUSIASTIC OVER NEW JOB

Former Pilot Anxious To Start—Recommends Players for Crackers.

By Ralph McGill.

CONSTITUTION STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

DOVER HALL, Ga., Jan. 10.—Johnny G. Dobbs is looking forward to having Milton Stock in his infield like the average small boy looks forward to the arrival of old Kris Kringle himself in person.

He thinks that Milt Stock, freed at last from managerial worries, will become the best infielder in the league and arouse the Atlanta fans to some real enthusiasm.

JOINS MOBILE.

Stock left the big leagues because of a salary difference. He was let out by a so-called gentleman's agreement when he held out for more money. He signed with Mobile and fell into the manager's job. Managing at Mobile is a task for those who make a profession of rushing in and treading where angels fear to tread. Nashville used to be the graveyard of managerial hopes. Mobile has that honor now.

Going on to the Texas league Milt Stock piloted the Dallas club to a flag. And then got the well-known boot. It is not generally known but Milt Stock asked for they well-known boot. He wanted to get out of Texas quickly and as painlessly as possible.

Johnny Dobbs has had a letter from Stock in which he pledges his enthusiastic support and expresses his pleasure at being signed with the Atlanta club.

RECOMMENDS MEN.

"Stock" has recommended some players to me," said Dobbs, "and I think they will prove valuable. He has told me that he wants to play on a winning club and that he is trying to do everything he can to make a winning club. That's the sort of spirit he has. He was never satisfied in Texas and his stay there was a strain. I looked for Milt Stock to find the greatest year he has had since he left the major leagues."

Dobbs did not say so but it was Stock who recommended the Texas league outfielder whom Dobbs is trying to land. He is a big right-handed hitter and can go get them. If he is landed, Dobbs' outfield will be practically set. Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn club and maestro of Dover Hall, has said that if Parham fails the Crackers will send him back to Atlanta. Dobbs likes Parham. He thinks he can be made into a real ball player. "I used to tell my players, my youngsters, to watch him," said Dobbs. "He has the best natural swing I have seen in a long time. He has some faults which were not corrected until I am mistaken he will make a good man. I hope to get him back. With Ed Brown and this fellow from Texas he would give us an outfield as good as any in the league."

DEAL UNDER WAY.

The deal for the Texas league outfielder has just been started and nothing definite has been accomplished. The Crackers have sent out tentative inquiries about prices and that sort of thing.

In fact, it may not be set until late. In fact, it may be necessary to remake it. There is no guarantee that Parham will not stick with Brooklyn. It is unlikely, as he did not have better than a fair year with the Crackers in 1929 and needs more seasoning. If he should stick, it would mean that the Crackers would have to get in the market for an outfielder. Parham is desired because he is a class man.

The deal for Yarn Yarn exploded after it was thought that a good deal wanted him. The Barons refused to guarantee that he would report in condition to play and Spiller refused to go on with the deal. Dobbs was disappointed, but the Crackers will have Yelle and Wildboy Thompson, the youngster, who was with Macon last year. Dobbs will go after another deal, but he is not in a hurry to enter in the old punch at the platter.

HOPES FOR RAUCH.

In addition to the hopes that Parham will not stick with Brooklyn, there is a hope that a good outfielder in case he comes back to the Crackers. Dobbs has high hopes concerning Bill Rauch, the young right-handed pitcher, who was with the Crackers last season.

"Rauch seemed to me to have the wrong sort of delivery," said Dobbs. "He always finished up his delivery with one foot well back of the other. He let the ball go at one side instead of in front of him. I think I can teach him to finish his drive in front with both feet on a line. He has plenty of stuff and lack of control has been his greatest fault. It is an conviction that it is because he released the ball at his side. It is next to impossible to control a ball when it is let go at that point."

DOBBS' SPIRIT.

The new Crackers manager expects to have a team with a typical Dobbs fighting spirit. He has never had a team that did not bustle, has Dobbs. Milt Stock and his attitude was offered for an example of the spirit he is going to have. Jimmy Johnston has the same kind. Johnston was delighted to get away from Chattanooga at the end of February 10, to work with Jack Sheehan about the keystone.

Dobbs had a successful hunt at Douglas, Ga., the week of February 10, here camp for the Crackers, and expects to be in Atlanta next week to get down to business. He remains in an optimistic mood concerning his ball club.

Magnolia Card.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10.—(P)—Jose Martinez, Filipino featherweight, and Pete Nabo, of Key West, will go on the card for Promoter Lou Magnolia here at the end of February 10, Magnolia announced tonight.

The card was arranged to replace the Martinez-Kid Chocolate round which Magnolia had scheduled, but which was discarded when Miami boxing commission drew the color line on the New York negro.

Senate Lobby Group Catches Tartar in Woman Publicist

GLADYS JONES TELLS THEM A FEW THINGS

BY MARGUERITE YOUNG, Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Gladys Moon Jones, a comely mother of two children who more than once has been featured on the chautauqua stage, held the spotlight before the senate lobby committee today and emerged convinced that she had given a good show.

She told the inquisitors just what she thought of lobbies in general and of that committee, which was examining her activities on behalf of a low sugar duty. Previously she had publicly avowed her eagerness to tell how she earned between $20,000 and $30,000 a year in a publicity business which includes representation of sugar interests.

Bringing to the contest a natural sense of the dramatic and a legal training which sustained her in the practice of law for a time, now and then Mrs. Jones turned the tables and took over the inquiry into the keeping of her own tongue.

"Now I want to ask you a question," she told Chairman Caraway of the committee during one of her exchanges with him.

"Do you know that Cuba has, over a period of five years, paid one-quarter of the entire customs duties collected by this country? Did you know that?"

"No, I do not know that," Caraway said.

"It is a good idea for you to keep in touch with my office," she told him. "You would know that, if you come to my office you will find it out. That is my business."

"Pardon me just a minute. Why don't you put me on your mailing list?"

"I did and what did you do? You very proudly said, 'I throw them in the waste basket.'"

"Yes—"

"Look what you were throwing in the waste basket."

"I did not know it was from you though."

"No, do you know that Cuba is our second largest export market for the textile industry, and that the textile industry—"

"The next time you write mark it personal and I will get it," Caraway told her.

In another exchange with Caraway and Senator Walsh, of Montana, another member of the committee, she questioned their right to one of her personal letters.

"I wrote it, but I want to ask you what right you have to have it?" she demanded.

"Well, we seem to have it," Caraway rejoined.

"How did you get it?" she shot back. "By what right have you my personal letter in your hands?"

"We will argue that some other time," Caraway said.

"We will argue that some other time," she retorted.

"Then don't forget about it," she responded.

The question arose again later, after she had been questioned concerning letters which mentioned persons employed by her at various times in the publicity campaign against a high sugar tariff.

"You are going to cast a lot of shadows over these boys and they did nothing wrong," she told Senator Walsh.

"You would like to argue the question with me that Senator Caraway stepped a minute ago."

"I will let him do that, then," Caraway put.

"I maintain that you have no right, under the fourth amendment of the constitution, to have these things in your hands at all," Mrs. Jones persisted. "I object to people coming in my office without a warrant on general principles."

In the midst of the questionings, she swept her blue hat from her head with a dramatic gesture. Occasionally she leaned forward in her chair, pressing her elbows on the table at which sat Senators Caraway and Walsh and Blaine. She looked younger than her years—the middle thirties—and confident in the becomingness of her silk dress with its Russian embroidery.

Tonight she said she was pleased because the senators had treated her "as any other witness."

"After I realized that they were not out simply to exorcise me," she added, "we got along fine. I simply told them frankly about the work I do, which is open and above board, and asked, in effect 'what of it?'"

S. J. COLE, JR., CLEARED

Autoist Held Not Guilty in Richardson Death.

S. J. Cole, Jr., 24-year-old resident of 233 Thirteenth street, who has been charged with being the driver of one of the two hit-and-run cars which on New Year's eve struck down and killed T. E. Richardson, 40-year-old mechanic, was freed from blame Friday morning when his case was dismissed by Recorder A. W. Calloway.

Richardson was killed on Whitehall street, near Humphrey street, just as Atlanta was welcoming in the New Year. He was struck by one car, and falling in the path of a second, driving in the opposite direction, was instantly killed. Both cars sped away.

Cole's car was identified as one that was alleged to have participated in the accident, and he was arraigned on charges of reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident without stopping or giving his name. However, the evidence brought against him Friday morning was declared insufficient and it was testified that the second car, and not the one believed to have been driven by Cole, was the cause of Richardson's death.

German Judge Fines Butcher In 'Witch' Case

BERLIN, Germany, Jan. 10.—(Chicago Daily News.)—In this year of grace 1930, enlightened Germany has deemed to permit a case of "witchcraft" on the dockets of its courts.

In the criminal court of Koenigsberg, a village of Mecklenburg province of the Baltic, the judge had passed a verdict in a real witch trial, and it came about this way.

For some time the village had been pursued by evil fortune. It saw its cattle dying off and its harvests destroyed by storms. The peasants could not explain these ills except by their belief in witchcraft. Therefore, they engaged the services of a renowned wizard from Rostock, another town on the Baltic, who for $15 and some hampers promised to exorcise the malignant witch.

Panic struck the peasants when, after weird incantations, an old woman was found in a small patch of woods and declared by the omnipotent wizard to be the baleful witch responsible for the village's misfortunes. Thereupon the village butcher stepped up and publicly denounced the old woman.

The husband of the alleged evil one filed suit and in the trial the butcher was fined for insult.

However, it is improbable that the peasants have changed their minds concerning the "witch" identity.

Only eleven other persons were in the funeral party. All were members of the family or intimate associates.

The doors of the Singing Tower were closed only seven minutes, while the Episcopal service was read before the family.

The doors swung open again, attendants removed from the crypt a blanket of myrtle which had been gathered from the sanctuary, and Brees began playing on the chimes "God's Hand," an old Dutch folk song for which Bok wrote the words. Then, as the chimes tolled Chopin's funeral march, the commitment service was read.

Mrs. Bok did not remain while the casket was lowered into the crypt by 16 men, but her two sons watched.

EDWARD W. BOK BURIED IN SINGING TOWER

Severe Simplicity Marks Funeral of Editor-Philanthropist.

LAKE WALES, Fla., Jan. 10.—(United News.)—A hollowed crypt in the base of the Singing Tower held tonight the remains of Edward William Bok, Dutch immigrant and American editor, author and philanthropist, who died here yesterday from heart disease.

Bok was buried in the late afternoon with impressively simple funeral services at which only 18 persons were present, although 2,000 others stood near by on the grounds of his birth sanctuary while the Episcopal ritual was read.

The funeral march to the Singing Tower, which houses one of the finest carillons in the world, began promptly at 3:35 p. m., when Anton Brees, Belgian chime master, began tolling the bells.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel McConnell, Episcopal rector of Philadelphia, led the funeral march. Mrs. Bok, the former Mary Louise Curtis, and her two sons, William Curtis and Gary William, followed immediately behind the bronze casket, and Cyrus H. K. Curtis and Mrs. Curtis, Mrs. Bok's parents, walked behind them.

Only eleven other persons were in the funeral party. All were members of the family or intimate associates.

The doors of the Singing Tower were closed only seven minutes, while the Episcopal service was read before the family.

The doors swung open again, attendants removed from the crypt a blanket of myrtle which had been gathered from the sanctuary, and Brees began playing on the chimes "God's Hand," an old Dutch folk song for which Bok wrote the words.
